The Cows Come Home.

With kingle, kingle, kingle,
Way down the dusky dingle,
The cows are coming home,
Now sweet and clear and faint and low,
The airy tinklings come and go
Like chimings from some far-off tower,
Or patterings of an April shower,
That makes the daisies grow;
Ko-larry, ko-larry, ko-klinglingling,
Way down the dusky dingle,
The cows come slowly home;
And old-time friends, and twilight plays,
And starry nights and sunny days,
Come trooping up the misty ways,
When the cows come home.

With kingle, kingle, kingle,
Soft sounds that sweetly mingle,
The cows are coming home,
Malvines, and Peas, and Primroses,
The Knap, Redwoods and Gretchen Schell,
Queen Bess, and Sybil and Spangled Sue,
Across the fields I hear her oo-oo,
And clang her silver bell;
Go-larry, go-larry, ko-klinglingling,
With faint, far sounds that mingle,
The cows come slowly home;
And mother songs of long-gone years,
And baby joys and childish tears,
And youthful hopes and youthful fears,
When the cows come home.

With a tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
Through fern and pertwinkle,
The cows are coming home,
Whispering in the checkerboard stream,
Where the sun-rays glaucous and gleam,
Stardine, Peachbloom, and Phoebe Phyllis
Stand knee-deep in the creamy hills
In a drowsy dream;
Go-larry, go-larry, ko-klinglingling,
Over the banks with buttercups a-twinkle,
The cows come slowly home;
And up through memory's deep ravine,
Come the brook's old song and its old
Time when
And the crescent of the silver queen,
When the cows come home.

SAID I NOT SO?

By GEORGE HERBERT.

Another selection from this writer, with his biographical sketch, has already been printed in this series.

SAID I not so,—that I would sin no more?
Witness, my God, I did;
Yet I am run again upon the score:
My faults cannot be hid.

What shall I do?—make vows and break them still?
'Twill be but labor lost;
My good cannot prevail against mine ill:
The business will be crost.

O, say not so; thou canst not tell what strength
Thy God may give thee at the length.
Renew thy vows, and if thou keep the last,
Thy God will pardon all that's past.

Vow while thou canst; while thou canst vow, thou mayst
Perhaps perform it when thou thinkest least.

Thy God hath not denied thee all,
Whilst he permits thee but to call.
Call to thy God for grace to keep
Thy vows; and if thou break them, weep.

Weep for thy broken vows, and vow again:
Vows made with tears cannot be still in vain.

Then once again
I vow to mend my ways;
Lord, say amen,
And thine be all the praise.

NOVEL WILL CASE.

Chancery Court to Construe Paper Left By Wm. Paul.

The Chancery Court has before it an interesting will case, which involves the disposition of some $15,000 worth of property. It will be recalled that Paul took his own life some time ago. He left a will, in which he made many bequests among them being one to his father, who is superintendent of the colored almshouse. The widow of Paul seeks to upset the will and she is represented by Attorney Geo. A. Hanson. Hon. Jas. A. Johnston Cabell is counsel for those claiming under the paper, and the contest promises to be interesting. Mrs. Paul is said to be making the fight for the sake of her husband's unborn child. She claims that what purports to be the will is written on two sheets of paper, and that there is nothing to show any connection between them. The other side contend in answer that the will is written on sheets one and two and that the two sheets constitute a proper will.

DOUBLY UNFORTUNATE.

Mrs. Deaton, Whose Husband Deserted Her, Victim of Accident.

While helping her landlady, Mrs. Lulu Freeman, at No. 108 Buchanan Street, yesterday morning in her housework, Mrs. Bethel Claude Deaton, whose husband left her a week ago for parts unknown, had a wire-nail thrust quite a distance through her foot, and is now suffering at her home. The injury, while not serious, is distressing to Mrs. Deaton, because she is now forced to her bed helpless with her small, twenty-one months' old child, penniless and dependent on the charity of her friends.

Mrs. Deaton, who is the daughter of a respectable farmer near Greensboro, N. C., had purposed to return to her home to-day, but owing to the accident, she has had to defer the trip indefinitely. She and her infant are now depending on the kindness of Mrs. Freeman for her food and other necessities of life. She says she will be glad of any contributions that may be sent her, and is grateful for those already sent her by sympathetic readers of the paper.

The whereabouts of her husband are still unknown, and he was last heard of when he left Miss Mary Bradley in Fredericksburg last Sunday and departed ostensibly for Chicago. Mrs. Deaton is of the opinion that he will never return to her, and weeps at the thought of her past happiness and present destitute circumstances.

Newspaper Tributes.

On the demise of the late Henry Clay Payne, a concern in New York gathered from the papers published throughout the United States 4,685 newspaper stories of the life and career of the deceased.

These items were carefully mounted on Irish linen leaves and bound in 6 volumes, 400 pages to the book. A cover of genuine seal was appropriately lettered in gold and the entire material, representing the work of many people for several months, has just been delivered to Mr. Payne at Milwaukee.

Mrs. Burrelle, who makes a specialty of this unique method of preserving family history, also compiled four volumes containing the letters, telegrams and cards of condolence received by the family, all constituting a family heirloom that will be handed down to future generations.

This work is one of the several developments of the press clipping industry and Mr. Burrelle has made a special study of the work he created several years ago.
